14 POSTMASTERS SINCE FOUNDING OF CITY

Old Clipping Shows List of Uncle Sam's Officials Down To Present Day

Cashier John W. Crooke, of the Citizens National Bank, has just shown the Daily Register a clipping from the old weekly Kentucky Register, which gave a list of the postmasters of Richmond since the founding of the city and up to that time. Since that list was printed, Richmond has had one more Postmaster in R. C. Stockton and is about to have another in Robert R. Burnam, Jr. Their names are added to the list given below; otherwise it is reprinted just as the old clipping had it.

Mr. John P. M. Taylor, who probably knows as much about the workings of the postoffice department as the Postmaster General himself, gave us some interesting facts about the Richmond office the other day. The office was established July 2, 1802, nearly 101 years ago. In that time there have been twelve postmasters, one of whom was Mr. Taylor, who served over twenty-one years, or nearly one-fourth of the whole time. The following is the list of the postmasters and the terms of service:

|                      |            |
|----------------------|------------|
| William Miller       | July 1802  |
| Robert Miller        | Aug. 1806  |
| William Jenkins      | May 1829   |
| Jas. M. Shackelford  | May 1841   |
| Robert E. Kelly      | May 1845   |
| James M. White       | Jan. 1855  |
| James H. Berry       | April 1856 |
| Palestine P. Ballard | April 1861 |
| John P. M. Taylor    | Dec. 1864  |
| Joe B. Willis        | Mar. 1887  |
| Wm. A. Powell        | Mar. 1891  |
| Joe B. Willis        | Mar. 1895  |
| C. C. Wallace        | April 1899 |
| R. C. Stockton       | 1913       |
| R. R. Burnam, Jr.    | 1922       |

Mr. Willis, the only democrat who has held the office since the war, was appointed twice by President Cleveland. Mr. Wallace's first term is nearing an end, but his friends are in no way uneasy, as his reappointment is considered certain, there being thus far no other applicant.

MISS CHENAULT COMES HERE WITH 'STROLLERS'

The Strollers of the University of Kentucky will present "The Thirteenth Chair" by Bayard Veiller at the opera house in this city Wednesday, April 26.

All of the scenery used in the play was made by the students, under the direction of Prof. Carol Sax, of the Art Department.

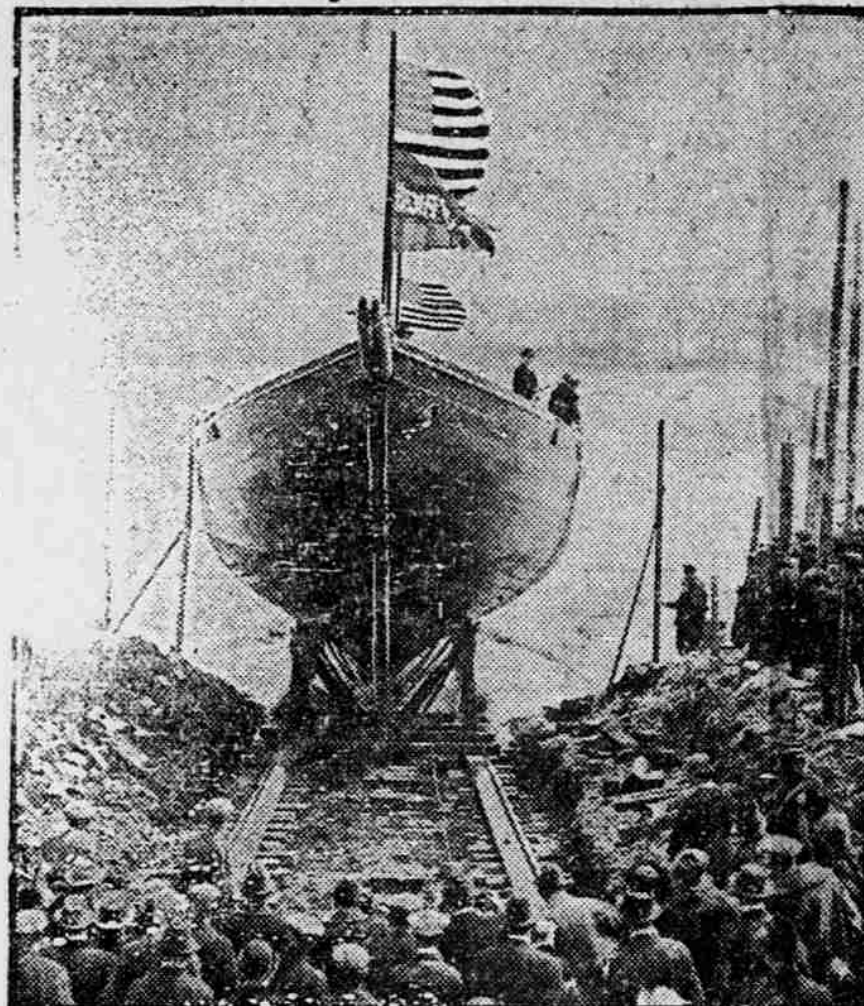

"The Thirteenth Chair" is a mystery play and the interest aroused in the first few minutes of the play is maintained until few minutes before the curtain falls on the last act, at which time the "secret" about which the entire plot of the play is centered is given out. Every act and scene in the play is one of excitement and mystery. It calls for professional acting and this the cast has met in every demand. The acting done by some members of the cast is of professional calibre.

The cast is composed of the following young University students, the names given in order of importance:

Rosalie La Grange, Mary Lyons, Lexington; Helen O'Neal, Frances Smith, Lexington; Inspector Donahue, John Albright, Mt. Vernon; Will O. Crosby, Daniel Morse, Lexington; Mr. Crosby, William Finn, Burlington; Mrs. Crosby, Eleanor Morse, Lexington; Edw. Wales, Tom Brooks, Covington; Mrs. Truitt, Kitty Conroy, Mt. ## EARL COMBS STICKS ON LOUISVILLE TEAM

Earl Combs has made good. Eastern Normal's base ball star player has been permanently retained as utility outfielder of the Louisville American Association team. The Louisville papers said so Friday. Combs broke into the lineup in the game Thursday. He got two hits out of four times up, or an average of .500, but fielded poorly, probably due to nervousness at his first time on the big line. The Courier-Journal said of his retention permanently by the club:

The question of utility outfielder of the Colonels was settled yesterday with the sending back of Lyman Lamb to the St. Louis Browns and the injection of Earl Combs into the game. Manager Neal stated that Combs had been kept in preference to Lamb. The latter is a finished ball player, while Combs played his first league game yesterday. Although he started poorly yesterday, it is believed that Combs will develop into a crack outfielder.

The Louisville Herald had this about the "Pride of Eastern"

Combs had an unsteady afternoon in center field. The game was the youngster's first league contest and no athlete is ever steady on a debut. On his first chance he let Mellin's cinchy fly fall for three bases. He stopped short of Lear's pop fly on his next try and it fell for two bases.

On his next chance he failed to head Johnson's single and it rolled to the fence enabling that gentleman to gain three bases, and another pastime to score. Combs is a natural hitter and he atoned at bat for much of his unfortunate work field. He walked on his first appearance, singled sharply to left on his next and grounded to Cooney on his third try. He popped to Cooney on his next effort and singled to left with vim on his final try.

Combs pulled a beautiful slide into third in the first inning. He singled in the third with Tincup on first and came high to beating Ben to second. He returned to first in safety.

As soon as he was freed last night the Cossack leaped into a taxicab and was whisked away northward. The last seen of Semenov by others than his lawyers, was when his mustached face gleamed out of the rear window of the cab as it disappeared in a maze of traffic.

DR. SOLOMON'S VISIT PROVES REAL TREAT

Famous Physician H. Guest
At Joint Meeting of Rotary
Club and Physicians

A very enjoyable function was held Thursday night in the main dining room of the Glyndon Hotel in which the physicians of Richmond and Madison county and the Local Rotary Club were in joint meeting.

Dr. Leon Solomon, of Louisville one of the leading medical men of the south, was the guest of honor. The fact that Dr. Solomon is the representative of his profession in Louisville as a member of the Rotary Club for a number of years and that he is a leader in the field of medicine gave a peculiar appropriateness to his being the honor guest of both organizations.

After a self-introduction period in which each member of the club was asked to arise, give him name his profession or business, and his town, Dr. Solomon was presented by President H. W. Carpenter of the Rotary Club. He made a splendid address upon the principles of the organization, pointing out some definite tasks in the city of Richmond for the local club and laying upon the shoulders of the local men some heavy responsibilities for community betterment. The address was enthusiastically received both by physicians and members of the Rotary Club.

Dr. W. K. Price, president of the Madison County Medical Society, then opened a round-table conference in which many representatives took part and at the close of which Dr. Solomon was urged to discuss at length a number of matters in connection with the advancement of medical science.

The coming of such men as Dr. Solomon to the city of Richmond is not without significance and out of the meeting Thursday night there were promises to develop some important plans for community improvement.

A delightful dinner was served by the management of the hotel to the guests.
